STICKLEY

"We want our Stickley to become family heirlooms for our children and their children, and since no one in our family has been fortunate enough to own Stickley before, we are proud this tradition will start with us."

- Jake Langston, customer

Discover why, for generations of Americans, Stickley furniture is not just a symbol of quality, but the definition of home. For every design, we look to our past for inspiration and guidance as we evolve our furniture for the needs of today's homes and families. And we manufacture each piece using both time-honored hand-crafting and state-of-the-art technology, never losing sight of our mission to create beautiful furniture that lasts for generations.

"At Stickley, we are keenly aware and justifiably proud of the legacy generated by the Stickley family. Our goal is not merely to continue that legacy, but to enhance it, constantly looking for new and creative ideas in our ongoing quest for excellence."

The St. Lawrence Collection takes a restrained approach to furniture craft while creating a natural, relaxed feeling of home. Bold silhouettes emphasize the beauty of superb solid oak, and wire brushing reveals broad, textured cathedral grains. Quiet metal details and clean moldings are among the touches that create a time-honored yet subtly contemporary look. The collection introduces seven dining room, five bedroom, and ten occasional pieces, all in a mid-tone Bay Brown finish that highlights the beauty of the grain.

ARTISTRY IN OAK

The finest solid oak has been exquisitely shaped and carved to make every piece in the St. Lawrence collection. To emphasize its complex cathedral grain, the wood's surface is thoroughly wire-brushed, a technique that lifts away softer fibers and exposes the deeper, harder texture beneath. Finally, our clear Bay Brown finish allows this spectacular grain to shine through.

TRADITION REFRESHED

Look closely at the forms that make up St. Lawrence, and you'll appreciate our updated approach to traditional millwork. In every room you'll see bold silhouettes and striking surface textures—effects that are created with cleanly carved moldings, recessed panels, and squared-off bands that give a contemporary edge to the typical turned base or leg.

STYLE FOR ALL OCCASIONS

St. Lawrence's three living room groups have individual charms, but they all know how to work with the room. The Post group has round, tapered legs that extend to the tabletop, while the Turned group echoes the bold, banded shapes of our dining tables. Even more contemporary, the Metal group's mix of soft, warm-hued metal with Bay Brown oak feels fresh yet relaxed.

FINISH AND MATERIALS

FINISH

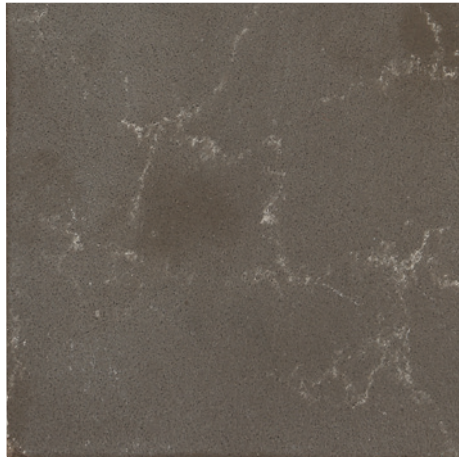

Finely balanced between warm and cool, a Bay Brown finish shows off the grain of wire-brushed oak.

FABRIC

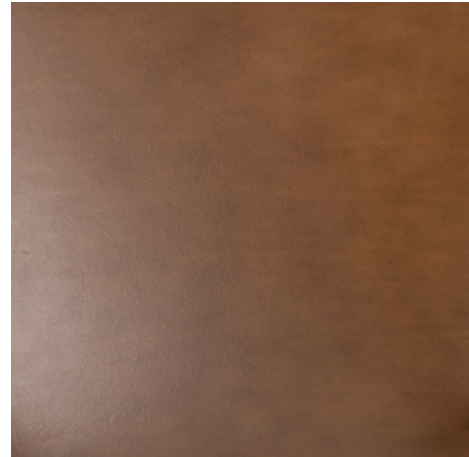

Dining chairs are protected from spills with our linen-colored Crypton textured fabric.

STONE

Sealed quartz tops make practical, stain-resistant surfaces.

LEATHER

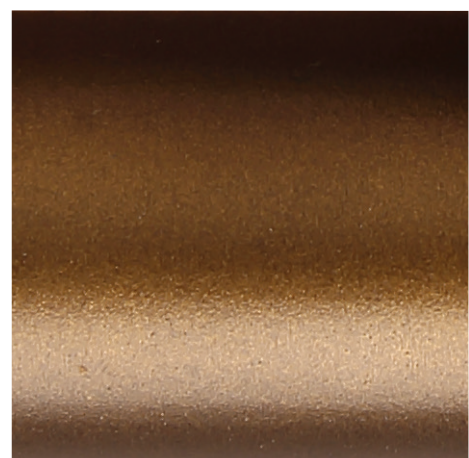

Mason Brown performance leather is soft and supple, yet highly durable and fade resistant.

HARDWARE

Storage pieces are subtly ornamented with octagonal knobs of darkened metal.

METAL

Quiet metals live alongside our beautiful oak to create an airy, contemporary style.

THE STICKLEY DIFFERENCE

At Stickley, we share a philosophy akin to Gustav Stickley's "Als ik kan," from the Flemish meaning "to the best of my ability." Our mission is to offer honest craftsmanship, inherent value, and unmatched service. We invite you to discover The Stickley Difference, because not all furniture is created equal.

Side-Hung and Center-Guided Drawers

The center guide keeps drawers from skewing sideways. Side suspension keeps them level when heavily loaded. There are no plastic parts to break, no metal to rust and scratch—just honest-to-goodness hand craftsmanship. The drawer never scrapes the bottom and opens and closes with ease—forever.

Pinned Mortise-and-Tenon Joinery

A signature element of Stickley construction is the tenon: a board whose ends have been cut for insertion into a mortise. Many Stickley joints are tenoned, glued, and pinned with wooden pins. The pins lock the joint, supplying additional strength. This joint would hold together even without the use of glue. Some styles are pinned from the front and are visible, others from the back.

One-Piece Drawer Fronts

To showcase the inherent beauty of fine solid hardwoods, Stickley drawer fronts are made from a single wide board. This costly technique eliminates the unsightly glue lines, color variation, and grain inconsistency found in lesser drawer fronts.

Bed Rail Construction

We use top-quality 5/4" solid oak for the St. Lawrence bed rails. Two panhead screws are positioned at the ends of each rail to lock into an iron casting with a tongued slot. The end rails are mortised and tenoned into the posts and secured with wooden pins. As a result, our beds won't wobble or rock.

Dovetailed Cross Rails

Cross rails on cases are dovetailed into the ends to strengthen the case from side to side. This joint is self-locking even without glue, and separation of the end panels is impossible unless the wood is split apart. Dowel joints rely on glue, and glue can fail over time. A dovetail joint cannot fail.

QUALITY WORTH THE INVESTMENT

When you buy Stickley, you won't need to replace it after a few years. We create heirlooms to be passed down through the generations. And nothing is more sustainable than furniture built to last a lifetime.

We invest in only the best materials, including premium hardwoods, fine stone tops, and high-quality hardware.

Our time-honored construction techniques require more care and effort but result in a stronger, more durable product.

Features like our hand-applied finishes, carved moldings, and wire brushing require the hands-on work of many skilled craftspeople whose time and effort are a meaningful investment.
